

<Files\\Slovenia data> - § 15 references coded [1,25% Coverage]

Reference 1 - 0,20% Coverage

The Roman-Catholic church was built after a terrible fire in Ljubljana, and now hosts the Macedonian Orthodox Church, which lacked own place of worship in the city.

Reference 2 - 0,03% Coverage

Here, Hercules supposedly killed a menacing dragon.

Reference 3 - 0,05% Coverage

Narcissus was a beautiful but cold young man who rejected the love of Echo.

Reference 4 - 0,12% Coverage

Plečnik incorporated the ruins into the walkways that link the castle with interesting viewpoints and tree-lined avenues.

Reference 5 - 0,04% Coverage

Plečnik's library replaced an old palace destroyed in the earthquake of 1895.

Reference 6 - 0,13% Coverage

Plečnik had grand plans for the bridge at the market, but the project was completed only in 2010 according to a new but unfortunately subpar plans.

Reference 7 - 0,10% Coverage

Its four main dragon statues allude to the symbol of the city and the Argonauts, who travelled through the Ljubljana basin and killed a menacing dragon.

Reference 8 - 0,07% Coverage

Kocbek was a prominent resistance functionary during the Second World War, but fell out of favour in 1952, when he wrote about moral dilemmas during the Partisan years.

Reference 9 - 0,09% Coverage

If you want to experience a unique view of the city, this is a real vantage point, from where you can see almost the entire Ljubljana basin in good weather.

Reference 10 - 0,06% Coverage

Today, he can no longer adorn himself with these flattering titles, but he has become one of the recognizable symbols of our city.

Reference 11 - 0,03% Coverage

And when you step on it, you are frightened by terrible dragons **

Reference 12 - 0,08% Coverage

but these are not good memories, absolutely too much nervousness and trepidation for me.

Reference 13 - 0,11% Coverage

but mostly beautiful moments and memories, especially when a decade passes and bad things fade, but moments of youth remain.

Reference 14 - 0,11% Coverage

What's even crazier, though, is that they've wanted to clean up the location several times already because it's supposed to be a disgrace to our tidy city.

Reference 15 - 0,03% Coverage

s masterpiece, a rather sad place.